Acknowledgments

The opportunity to write this book I owe to the friendly initiative of Ted Schuller, and in working on it I have benefited, I hope, from the critical advice of W. J. McClung and Doris Kretschmer of the University of California Press and U. C. Knoepfelmacher of Berkeley. Earlier versions of some paragraphs appeared in articles contributed to the Times Literary Supplement, and I must thank the Editor, John Gross, for the chance to write them in the first place and for permission to rewrite them here. Quotations from the work of W. H. Auden are printed by permission of Edward Mendelson of Yale University.

The writing was completed at Princeton, where during 1975 and 1976 I was Hodder Fellow. I have to thank the Council of the Humanities for this award and the Governing Body of Christ Church, Oxford, for granting me leave to accept it. Dr. Waltraud Neuwirth of the Österreichisches Museum für angewandte Kunst, Michael Bronson and Johanna Fiedler of the Metropolitan Opera, New York, and Georgette Rosstand of the Théâtre National de l'Opéra, Paris, were most helpful; in Princeton, Tom Roche and Walt Litz were immensely kind. The wisdom, wit, and generosity of Paul and Betty Fussell enriched my year in America, and, I should like to hope, this book.
